Morningstar Analyst Rating

Morningstar evaluates mutual funds based on five key pillars, which its analysts believe lead to funds that are more likely to outperform over the long term on a risk-adjusted basis.

Analyst Rating Spectrum

Gold Silver Bronze Neutral Negative

The Morningstar Analyst Rating for Funds is a forward-looking analysis of a fund. Morningstar has identified five key areas crucial to predicting the future success of a fund: People, Parent, Process, Performance, and Price. The pillars are used in determining the Morningstar Analyst Rating for a fund. Morningstar Analyst Ratings are assigned on a five-tier scale running from Gold to Negative. The top three ratings, Gold, Silver, and Bronze, all indicate that our analysts think highly of a fund; the difference between them corresponds to differences in the level of analyst conviction in a fund's ability to outperform its benchmark and peers through time, within the context of the level of risk taken over the long term (defined as a full market cycle or at least five years). Neutral represents funds in which our analysts don't have a strong positive or negative conviction over the long term (defined as a full market cycle or at least five years) and Negative represents funds that possess at least one flaw that our analysts believe is likely to significantly hamper future performance over the long term (defined as a full market cycle or at least five years). Past performance of a security may or may not be sustained in future and is no indication of future performance. 21 Apr, 2020 | The strategy's experienced manager and broad in-house resources, together with a unique approach, continue to support a Morningstar Analyst Rating of Silver for the B Acc share class. Ratings for other share classes range from Bronze to Silver.

The global discovery team of seven was established in 2009. It seeks to identify immature, ambitious, and entrepreneurial companies that are looking to scale up their operations on a global level. These firms typically offer solutions that larger companies are failing to address, and if successful, can offer investors asymmetric returns as they take market share and disrupt incumbent operators. The team actively leverages Baillie Gifford's wider resources, which include over 100 investors on 21 investment desks, in order to broaden awareness across industry trends. This cooperation helps provide advanced warning of disruptors and new market participants likely to impact industry incumbents. The sense of collaboration is reflected in the fact that over half the stocks held here are also held across other portfolios at the firm.

The process is differentiated and bottom up in nature, focusing on immature companies with a market cap of typically, but not always, less than USD 5 billion. Potential ideas are primarily unearthed through internal discussion, company meetings, and trade shows. The focus on disruption and innovation means that technology and healthcare names form a substantial element of the portfolio, while energy and basic-materials stocks feature sparingly. In addition, given where they are in their evolutionary development, around a third of the portfolio is in companies that are not yet making a profit. The resultant portfolio is typical of many at Baillie Gifford in that it is benchmark-unaware (98.7% active share relative to the S&P Global Small-Cap Index as of January 2020). The strategy is unapologetically "growth" in style and is substantially more expensive when compared with the index in terms of price/earnings, price/book, and price/free cash flow but with substantially greater forecast sales growth.

Results under Douglas Brodie's watch have been excellent relative to the MSCI ACWI Small Index and average category peer, both in absolute and risk-adjusted terms. Investors should be aware that with a focus on nascent companies in volatile sectors, however, the strategy is likely to offer a very bumpy ride.

The strategy's differentiated philosophy and approach warrant an Above Average rating.

Process Pillar ● Above Average

21 Apr, 2020 | The strategy's approach is based on the premise that long-term, patient investment delivers higher-than-average returns over the long haul. The team takes a five-year view when looking at companies and targets immature but innovative businesses with significant potential for structural growth. The focus is on companies whose market cap is between $100 million and $5 billion, giving an investable universe of some 15,000 companies globally of sufficient size and liquidity. The team does not seek to cover this entire universe; it instead focuses on sectors and areas of the market that are deemed attractive. The aim is to home in on firms in the early stage of their life that are offering solutions yet to be addressed by larger companies or the wider market. These established entities tend not to have the mindset of a small company, are likely to be sole operators in their end markets, and are very early stage disruptors within an industry. Position sizing reflects the immaturity spectrum varying between 0.5% and 2.5% but can be run above 5%, which will trigger a review. The initial cutoff is companies with a market cap that is sub-$5 billion at time of purchase, although there is no requirement to sell any holding simply because of it breaching that $5 billion level. The portfolio is largely unconstrained, other than broad portfolio risk parameters: a minimum of six countries and 10 industries.

A portfolio dominated by healthcare- and technology-related companies.

Process Pillar  Above Average

21 Apr, 2020 | The manager constructs a portfolio of 75-150 stocks. The focus on vast addressable markets and nascent disruptors to incumbents makes technology and healthcare obvious areas for investment. The portfolio is substantially more exposed to these sectors than typical peers and the index; they comprise over 61% of assets at the end of February 2020. However, within each segment, there is a high degree of diversification.

At the time of the review in March 2020, themes at play within the portfolio included the application of technology to automate and speed up traditionally manual processes such as medical imaging, drones, inspection, and manufacturing; novel problem-solving solutions to multiple applications that can be applied in many directions like antibody, therapeutics, gene silencing, and bond trading platforms; emerging companies in a large evolving market such as gene editing, microbiome-based therapeutics and smart labels; pre-existing profit pools under attack by better/cheaper alternatives like electric vehicles, 3D printing and online grocery; and in the connected digital age “data ownership” can create barriers to entry such as animal breeding and genomics.

Given the manager’s focus on innovative firms, the portfolio looks expensive on key metrics. As of February 2020, the strategy’s trailing price/earnings and price/book were more than triple those the MSCI ACWI Small Index.

 MSCI ACWI SMID NR USD

Excellent long-term returns in both absolute and risk-adjusted terms.

Performance Pillar

21 Apr, 2020 | Since Douglas Brodie took control in May 2011 through March 2020, the B Acc share class beat the MSCI ACWI Small Index and average peer by a wide margin. Its risk-adjusted return was also strong: The Sharpe ratio of 0.85 was firmly ahead of those of both comparators during the same period.

That is not to say that the trajectory of performance has been smooth. Given the unique approach to investment and large sector, style, and country biases, returns here are likely to significantly diverge from peers and the index. A portfolio of this nature should therefore only be judged over an extended period. The focus on nascent, and often pre-profitable firms can be adversely buffeted by weak market sentiment and a risk-off environment. This was evident in the fourth quarter of 2018, which saw the strategy sell off aggressively versus typical peers and the

MSCI ACWI Small Index.

For 2019, the B Acc share class topped both comparators, helped by a strong risk-on environment in the first half of the year. Attribution relative to the MSCI ACWI Small Index shows outperformance was driven by strong stock selection, particularly within the healthcare and consumer defensive sectors. In 2020 through March, the strategy lost far less than the index and typical peer. Its sizable overweighting to the healthcare sector and lack of exposure to areas that were hammered such as energy aided returns.

The strategy's experienced manager and broad in-house resources support an Above Average rating.

People Pillar  Above Average

21 Apr, 2020 | Douglas Brodie, who has 18 years of investment experience, manages this offering. His tenure on this strategy began in May 2011, initially on this OEIC before taking over its current closed-end equivalent--Edinburgh Worldwide--in January 2014. In addition, he has managed the Ireland-domiciled Baillie Gifford WW Discovery since its September 2017 inception. Luke Ward and Svetlana Viteva were appointed the fund's deputy managers in January 2018, with Brodie remaining the key decision-maker.

Brodie joined the group in 2001 through the graduate program and moved to the UK small-cap team in 2005, where he started his portfolio management career in 2007. In 2009, he formed the global-discovery team, which he currently heads. This comprises six members with an average experience and firm tenure of six years. Team members have considerable freedom and are encouraged to seek out interesting ideas for investment from a variety of sources, such as company visits, team interaction, and higher-level data analysis. We believe that the team structure and approach helps promote challenge and rigorous stock debate.

The team can further draw on the firm's wider and deep investment teams, which comprise over 100 investment professionals on 21 investment desks. Baillie Gifford rotates more-junior personnel around various teams to gain experience and a wider investment perspective.

An exemplary steward.

Parent Pillar High

12 Dec, 2019 | Edinburgh-based Baillie Gifford, founded in 1908 as a partnership, is owned by over 40 partners who average more than 20 years of tenure. The group offers strategies across asset classes, but equities remain its key strength and continue to dominate in terms of assets under management. Baillie Gifford's clientele is led by institutional investors, but in recent years the firm has made a push into the retail channel. In addition to being one of the largest managers of UK-listed closed-end funds, it has been successful in gaining traction internationally over the last decade through its range of Irish UCITS and US mutual funds.

A positive consequence of a large institutional and closed-end presence and private ownership is that these features facilitate the firm's long-term approach to investing. This is further reinforced by the remuneration structure, wherein a large component of a fund manager's bonus is based on three- and five-year performance. Although there are small, focused investment teams within the firm, there is a strong culture of collaboration, and staff turnover is among the lowest in the industry. Moreover, the firm has been active in cutting fees on a number of its strategies in recent years and demonstrated its willingness to safeguard investors' capital by capping funds approaching capacity. In all, we think Baillie Gifford benefits from a strong investment culture, earning it a High Parent rating.

Please note that investments in securities (including mutual funds) are subject to market and other risks and there is no assurance or guarantee that the intended investment objectives will be achieved. Past performance of a security may or may not be sustained in future and is no indication of future performance. A security investment return and an investor's principal value will fluctuate so that, when redeemed, an investor's shares may be worth more or less than their original cost. A security's current investment performance may be lower or higher than the investment performance noted within the report. Morningstar's Risk, Return and Star Rating serves as useful data points with respect to evaluating a fund's risk profile.

A current yield percentage is not a reflection of the actual return an investor will receive in all cases as market prices for securities are constantly changing due to such things as market factors. Where a security is denominated in a different currency than the currency of the User or User's clients, changes in rates of exchange may have an adverse effect on the value, price or income of or from that investment.

Indexes noted within the report are unmanaged, their returns do not include payment of any sales charges or fees an investor would pay to purchase securities, and cannot be invested in directly.

In certain jurisdictions, the Report contents, except for the Morningstar Analyst Rating and key analysis/opinions, may be shared with the fund company prior to publication. In the unlikely event that Morningstar would change their analysis/opinions and/or the Morningstar Analyst Rating based on feedback as result of such review, the Report would disclose such a fact.

The Morningstar Analyst Rating™ for Funds

The Morningstar Analyst Rating™ for Funds is a forward-looking analysis of a fund. The Analyst Rating does not express a view on a given asset class or peer group; rather, it seeks to evaluate each fund within the context of its objective, an appropriate benchmark, and peer group.

The date shown next to the Morningstar Analyst Rating is the date on which Morningstar Manager Research Analyst assigned or reaffirmed the current rating for the fund based on the analyst's latest review and research report for the fund.

The Five (5) Pillars

Morningstar has identified five key areas that we believe are crucial to predicting the future success of funds: People, Parent, Process, Performance, and Price. Each pillar is evaluated when assessing a fund as well as the interaction between the pillars, which we believe is crucial to understanding a fund's overall merit.

People

The overall quality of a fund's investment team is a significant key to its ability to deliver superior performance relative to its benchmark and/or peers. Evaluating a fund's investment team requires that analysts assess several relevant items including how key decisions are made.

Parent

We believe the parent organization is of utmost importance in evaluating funds. The fund's management set the tone for key elements of our evaluation, including capacity management, risk management, recruitment and retention of talent, and incentive pay. Beyond these operational areas, we prefer firms that have a culture of stewardship and put investors first to those that are too heavily weighted to salesmanship.

Process

We look for funds with a performance objective and investment process (for both security selection and portfolio construction) that is sensible, clearly defined, and repeatable. In addition, the portfolio should be constructed in a manner that is consistent with the investment process and performance objective.

Performance

We do not believe past performance is necessarily predictive of future results, and this factor accordingly receives a relatively small weighting in our evaluation process. In particular, we strive not to anchor on short-term performance. However, we do believe that the evaluation of long-term return and risk patterns is vital to determining if a fund is delivering to our expectations.

Price

To reflect actual investor experience, price is evaluated within the context of the relevant market or cross-border region—for example, the United States, Australia, Canada, or Europe. In recognition of differences in scale and distribution costs in various markets, the level at which a fund is penalised for high fees or rewarded for low fees can vary with region. In Europe, for example, funds are penalised if they land in the most expensive quintile of their Morningstar category and are rewarded if they land in the cheapest quintile. The assessment is made using annual expense ratios, but in the case of funds with performance fees, expenses are evaluated excluding any performance fees and then the structure of the performance fee is evaluated separately.

Morningstar Analyst Ratings

Morningstar Analyst Ratings are assigned on a five-tier scale running from Gold to Negative. The top three ratings, Gold, Silver, and Bronze, all indicate that our analysts think highly of a fund; the difference between them corresponds to differences in the level of analyst conviction in a fund's ability to outperform its benchmark and peers through time, within the context of the level of risk taken.

Gold

Represents funds that our analyst has the highest-conviction in for that given investment mandate. By giving a fund a Gold rating, we are expressing an expectation that it will outperform its relevant performance benchmark and/or peer group within the context of the level of risk taken over the long term (defined as a full market cycle or at least five years). To earn a Gold rating, a fund must distinguish itself across the five pillars that are the basis for our analysis.

Silver

Represents funds our analyst has high-conviction in, but not in all of the five pillars. With those fundamental strengths, we expect these funds will outperform their relevant performance benchmark and/or peer group within the context of the level of risk taken over the long term (defined as a full market cycle or at least five years).

Bronze

Represents funds that have advantages that clearly outweigh any disadvantages across the pillars, giving analyst the conviction to award them a positive rating. We expect these funds to beat their relevant performance benchmark and/or peer group within the context of the level of risk taken over a full market cycle (or at least five years).

Neutral

Represents funds in which our analysts don't have a strong positive or negative conviction. In our judgment, these funds are not likely to deliver standout returns, but they aren't likely to seriously underperform their relevant performance benchmark and/or peer group either.

Negative

Represents funds that possess at least one flaw that our analysts believe is likely to significantly hamper future performance, such as high fees or an unstable management team. Because of these faults, we believe these funds are inferior to most competitors and will likely underperform their relevant performance benchmark and/or peer group, within the context of the level of risk taken, over a full market cycle.

Morningstar may also use two other designations in place of a rating:

Under Review

This designation means that a change that occurred with the fund or at the fund company requires further review to determine the impact on the rating.

Not Ratable

This designation is used only where we are providing a report on a new strategy or on a strategy where there are no relevant comparators, but where investors require information as to suitability.

Morningstar Star Rating

The Morningstar Star Rating is a proprietary data point that is quantitatively driven. Funds are rated from one to five stars based on how well the fund performed (after adjusting for risk and accounting for sales charges) in comparison to similar funds. Within each Morningstar Category, the top 10% of funds receive five-stars and the bottom 10% receives one-star. Funds are rated for up to three time periods—three-, five-, and ten-years—and these ratings are combined to produce an overall star rating, which is noted within the Report. Funds with less than three years of history are not rated. Morningstar Star Ratings are based entirely on a mathematical evaluation of past performance. Morningstar Star Ratings are in no way to be considered a buy or sell signal nor should be viewed as a statement of fact.

Equity-Related Data Points

The Report lists the fund's top ten holdings as of the dated noted. For each underlying holding, a series of data points is provided including, where applicable, that security's Economic Moat as of the date noted.

Economic Moat

The concept of an economic moat plays a vital role in our equity analyst's qualitative assessment of a firm's long-term investment potential, but also in the actual calculation of its fair value estimate. An economic moat is a structural feature that allows a firm to sustain excess profits over a long period of time. We define economic profits as returns on invested capital (or ROIC) over and above our estimate of a firm's cost of capital, or weighted average cost of capital (or WACC). Without a moat, profits are more susceptible to competition. We have identified five sources of economic moats: intangible assets, switching costs, network effect, cost advantage, and efficient scale.

Companies with a narrow moat are those we believe are more likely than not to achieve normalized excess returns for at least the next 10 years. Wide-moat companies are those in which we have very high confidence that excess returns will remain for 10 years, with excess returns more likely than not to remain for at least 20 years. The longer a firm generates economic profits, the higher its intrinsic value. We believe low-quality, no-moat companies will see their normalized returns gravitate toward the firm's cost of capital more quickly than companies with moats.
