CUSTOMER DUE DILIGENCE FOR ANTI-MONEY LAUNDERING PURPOSES

(11)

This section does not apply where the transferee is a regulated financial institution or other entity that satisfies the criteria necessary to permit the Manager to apply 'simplified' customer due diligence. In such cases, the Manager or Registrar may seek confirmation of the transferee's status and eligibility for these purposes.

Under UK legislation to prevent money laundering, the authorised corporate director ('the Manager') of the open-ended investment company is required to verify the identities of any transferees named overleaf. In the case of bodies corporate, trusts and other legal arrangements, it is also required to establish the identity of any trustees or other controllers that are not named as well as individuals that have a specified beneficial interest in the shares being transferred. It may also need to enquire as to the purpose of the transfer. For these purposes, the Manager, or Registrar acting on its behalf, may need to obtain independent documentary evidence of identity in respect of the transferee(s) and may undertake electronic searches of the electoral register and of other personal data, although not credit information, which may be held by credit reference agencies and others. If the Manager is unable to verify the identity of the transferee(s) electronically, identity documents will be requested. Please note that the transfer will not be completed until documents are received.

Beneficial Ownership and Control

- If the transferee(s) is/are the individual beneficial owner(s), please state 'TRANSFEREE' or 'TRANSFEREES', as appropriate, in the first name space of the table below.
- If the transferee is a body corporate or a partnership, it must enter in the table below the names of any persons that own or control more than 25% of the voting rights in the body or partnership, or are entitled to more than 25% of its capital or profits, or otherwise exercise control over the management of the body or partnership*.
- If the transferee(s) is/are acting as trustee(s) (or similar), they must enter in the table below the names of any further trustees or others that have control over the management of the trust or arrangement and any individuals that have an entitlement to at least 25% of the property of the trust or otherwise have control over the trust*.

*If no individual has a specified interest that exceeds the above limits, please state 'NONE' in the name column and an appropriate description (e.g. shareholder, beneficiary etc.) on the right. In the case of entities and arrangements that are not established for the benefit of any specified individual(s), the table should be used to provide a description of the nature of those who will benefit from the entity or arrangement ('the class of beneficiary').
